Introit, Collect, Epistle, and Gospel make the service of each Sunday or festival distinct. And the Versicles, Antiphons, Responsories, and Lessons at the minor services were arranged to correspond with the particular gift of God s Word on the day. The Creed is said after the Lessons: (i) To own the acceptance of the Word of God by the congregation, and (2) to indicate the relation of the particular Word of the day to the whole counsel of God. The Nicene Creed alone is known in this place in the older service. In some German lands a rhymed version was sung. The Apostles Creed (though probably the ancient creed of the Roman Church) was not admitted to a place in the service except in some of the earliest liturgical attempts of the Reformation, and then did not meet with general acceptance. The Sermon follows. It..
