Outskirts Press, United States, 2010. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Imagine That Everything At School Is Wildly Different What happens when a boy awakens suddenly hearing a tremendous crashing noise on the street outside his window? He gets up and kind of floats through an unruly squadron of his own stuff to his window, where he sees the garbage truck momentarily hanging maybe twenty feet above the street. A second later it crashes downward again. The sound shakes the walls of his room! Jasper watches in astonishment. It isn't until his dog Juno comes flying across the room that he realizes something is very, very wrong. At that moment Jasper notices that everything that can move in his world is bouncing crazily up and down. Shoes, socks, pants, shirts, pencils, pens, video game controllers, everything in his room is like it has a life of its own. And all it wants to do is bounce. Still, at the age of eight, Jasper has been conditioned to know exactly what is expected of him. Doing his best to get through his morning routine (getting dressed, feeding the dog, eating breakfast, etc), he eventually makes his way to school, experimenting with this new form of motion. At school he encounters a drastically altered set of routines. All of his friends, his teachers, even the principal are bouncing chaotically all over the playground. As the teachers and principal struggle desperately to regain control over their school, abandoning any attempt at a flag salute, Jasper and his friends try to learn how to move more slowly and carefully. Once inside the classroom, they are confronted with a whole new set of problems. How many times will they slam into walls...
