With the exception of an article by Hon. R. P. Porter in the International Review for November, 1880, and another contributed to Lalor s Cyclopaedia, by George Walton Green, and afterwards expanded by the Society for Political Education, as Economic Tract No. 11, very little has been written upon it. Neither of these articles furnishes a statement of facts complete and exhaustive enough to form the basis of accurate scientific judgments, and both of them omit the discussion of important questions.
